U [yu] tiene tres diferentes sonidos en ingles; el uno es semejante al del diptongo castellano iu, como en muse, tube, cure (mius, tiub, quiur); se pronuncia tambien como en español en las voces full, truth, etc.; y por último tiene un sonido entre la a y la o españolas en but, cut, tub, etc.

En los diccionarios ingleses se hallan algunas veces mezcladas la u vocal y la v consonante; mas siendo diversas entre sí, tanto en su figura como en su sonido, no parece que hay razon suficiente para considerarlas como una sola y misma letra. Se han colocado por esto en el órden que tienen en el alfabeto; lo cual deberán tener presente los lectores ingleses en el uso de este diccionario.

LISTA ALFABETICA

DE LOS NOMBRES

DE PAISES, NACIONES, PROVINCIAS, MARES, PUEBLOS, RIOS, MONTAÑAS, ETC.

QUE NO SE ESCRIBEN DEL MISMO MODO

EN INGLES QUE EN ESPAÑOL.

Con el objeto de hacerla lo mas corta posible, no han sido comprendidos en ella los que tienen una misma ortografía en ambas lenguas, y los que pueden ser traducidos fácilmente con solo mudar su terminacion extranjera en la castellana; para lo cual se deberán observar las reglas siguientes.

Los acabados en burg, burgh, bourg y borough que no se hallen en la lista, se traducirán mudando solamente estas terminaciones en la castellana burgo, como Augsburg, Augsburgo; Petersburgh, Petersburgo; Hamburgh, Hamburgo; Cobourg, Coburgo; y Peterborough, Peterburgo, etc.

Hay muchos nombres geográficos universalmente conocidos que terminan en e, y se traducen con solo mudar la e en a, como Europe, Europa; Rome, Roma, etc.

Los ingleses suelen designar algunos de los condados en que dividen la Gran Bretaña, por medio de la terminacion shire añadida al nombre del condado, distrito ó provincia, como Derbyshire, que se traducirá El condado, distrito ó provincia de Derby; Yorkshire, El condado de York, etc.

Las letras s. y adj. indican que el nombre precedente puede usarse como substantivo ó adjetivo; v. g., Arragonese, s. y adj. Aragones, el cual en el primer caso significa el natural de Aragon, y en el segundo lo perteneciente á este reino.
